Insurance agents, marine surveyors, ship brokers, and lumber merchants in Bath, Maine

This collection contains business papers from James B. Drake & Sons and D. M. Humphreys & Co., two longstanding insurance agencies in Bath, Maine, that merged circa 1950. Material from James B. Drake & Sons includes ledgers and cashbooks, lumber purchasing contracts from shipyards, and records from Drake's fleet of coasting schooners. It also contains ledgers and journals from Drake's interests in the Kennebec Steamboat Company and the Maine Navigation Company. D. M. Humphreys & Co. is primarily represented by detailed marine surveys of more than 450 Bath vessels taken between 1874 and 1911. There is almost no correspondence in the collection.

Acquisition

The bulk of this collection was given to the museum by James B. Drake, son of Frederick E. Drake, in 1966. The remainder consists of a gift from Frederick E. Drake Jr., James's brother, and of two smaller gifts from Elena (Drake) Vandervoort, Frederick Jr.'s daughter.

Restrictions

There are no restrictions on this collection.

Physical Condition

The papers are mostly in good condition. The binding on many of the volumes is fragile, and leather elements are suffering from red rot. Covers are worn and some show water or insect damage.

Processing Notes

Papers that were folded or pinned into account books have been removed to separate folders. They are labeled with the page numbers where they had been inserted into the volume.

Some parts of the Drake family's gifts, which were only distantly related to the Drake or Humphreys businesses, have been filed as separate manuscript collections. These collections are as follows: two account books from Captain William P. Lincoln on the Annie Kimball (bark) and one from Ebed Lincoln, a grocer in Bath, all of which are now in MS-167; an 1838 petition about the Georgetown Ferry, now SM 189/3; and correspondence from Captain Thomas P. Gibbons, now MS-152.

Related Materials

Maine Maritime Museum has a number of other collections related to James B. Drake & Sons. More records on the insurance business can be found in SM 169/7, which holds two insurance policies for E. & A. Sewall, and in SM 29/8, which includes correspondence from both Drake and D. M. Humphreys to the Equitable Marine Insurance Company. The museum also has a stamp that James B. Drake & Sons used to impress their logo into paper, as well as a number of photographs that once decorated the company's office walls.

More information on the Drake schooner fleet can be found in SM 174/6, which contains accounts from the Mary L. Allen (three-mast schooner). SM 49/2 contains a diary kept aboard the Georgie L. Drake (three-mast schooner) by Captain James Skolfield's son, Ansel.

MS-339 contains additional account books from the Kennebec Steamboat Company. There is also related material in MS-41, the papers of the line's long-time captain Jason Collins, and SM 41/8, a scrapbook of advertisements for the company.

Several collections contain material from Drake and Humphreys family members that are not related to the family insurance businesses. SM 49/1 is a logbook kept by Denny McCobb Humphries for the bark C.O. Whitmore in 1868, before he retired to the insurance agency in Bath. A photograph of Humphreys as a captain (2016.69.1) is now in PC 3. MS-295 and MS-298 contain material from Frederick E. Drake Jr.'s other business interests, the latter through documents related to the Seaboard Navigation Company, which Drake founded in 1938, and the former through scrapbooks about the post-war merchant marine and the US Navy's supply division in World War II.

A photo collection, PC-315, contains photographs from the Drake family. These include images of the Drake schooner fleet and Kennebec Steamboat Company vessels.

In addition to the documents in this collection, Frederick E. Drake Jr. also donated material from Captain Thomas P. Gibbons, a distant relative that Drake credited with fostering his interest in the sea. These are now in MS-152.

Historical Note

James B. Drake (1838-1906) was an insurance broker and businessman with a wide range of interests in Bath, Maine. The son of Samuel L. Drake, minister of Bath's congregational church, Drake began his career as a clerk in various local firms. He entered the insurance business in the late 1850s while working as a bookkeeper for the iron dealers J. H. Allen & Co. Over the next fifty years, he built a thriving insurance agency that offered marine, fire, and life policies from a multitude of local and national companies. He also maintained an active array of businesses on the side, many of which are represented in this collection.

Drake expanded into ship brokerage in the late 1860s, negotiating the purchase, sale, and cargoes of vessels in Bath. One of Drake's clients as a broker was the Maine Navigation Company, an organization formed in 1886 to hold, operate, and sell all of the vessels formerly owned by the New England Shipbuilding Company. The board of the Maine Navigation Co. apparently commissioned Drake to sell their vessels quickly. He disposed of them all by the end of 1887.

As a natural extension of ship brokerage, Drake began purchasing his own shares in Bath vessels and, later, managing their business on his own account. In 1881, he commissioned the three-masted schooner Belle O'Neill from William Rogers, the first of a substantial fleet of new schooners under his control. By the 1890s, he was operating as many as a dozen schooners at once in the coal, ice, lumber, and other coasting trades. His last new vessel, the Isabel B. Wiley (three-mast schooner), was launched in 1906.

In 1886, Drake was instrumental in forming the Pine Tree State Navigation Company, a steamship line designed to challenge the Kennebec Steamboat Company over their crowded and inadequate service to Boston. In response, the Kennebec Steamboat Company was reorganized and Drake was selected as president. In this role, he oversaw the construction of the Kennebec

(steamer) for the Kennebec-Boston route, as well as the company's functional acquisition of the Eastern Steamboat Company. In 1901, when the two lines were acquired by Charles W. Morse and merged into the Eastern Steamship Company, Drake remained president of the divisions he had previously managed.

In 1899, Drake entered the lumber business. He dealt primarily in yellow pine, acting as a middleman between Gulf Coast timber companies and northern buyers to arrange the purchase and transportation of large orders, but apparently did not maintain stock for resale. Drake's customers in Bath included a number of shipyards, among them Percy & Small, G.G. Deering, and the Kelley, Spear Co. The Drake lumber business lasted until 1922.

James B. Drake married Georgianna Lincoln in 1866. They had a daughter, Georgie L. (b. 1867) and two sons, James Edward (1872-1953) and Frederick E. (1874-1948). Both sons joined their father in his insurance, brokerage, and lumber businesses in the 1890s. After James B. Drake's death, J. Edward and Frederick ran the company, renamed James B. Drake & Sons, until the late 1940s. Frederick's son, Frederick E. Drake Jr. (1912-1978) inherited the agency and kept it going until he retired in the late 1970s. The agency closed on Frederick Drake Jr.'s death after more than a century of business.

Circa 1950, James B. Drake & Sons absorbed D.M. Humphreys & Co., another longstanding Bath insurance agency. D.M. Humphreys & Co. was named for Denny McCobb Humphreys (1839-1912), the son of Brunswick shipbuilder John C. Humphreys. Denny McCobb Humphreys began his career at sea, but retired as a captain in the 1880s to join his brother in the insurance business. (His brother, John H. Humphreys, (1825-1891), had in turn inherited the agency from their brother-in-law, John H. Kimball.)

In addition to the insurance business, D.M. Humphreys & Co were the district surveyors for the American Bureau of Shipping, which issued the classifications used to determine insurance rates, from 1885 to 1917. As a surveyor, Humphreys made detailed reports on the construction, maintenance, and condition of hundreds of vessels built or repaired between Bath and Waldoboro.

In 1894, D.M. Humphreys & Co. moved into the new Sagadahock Block building. They occupied Room 11; James B. Drake & Sons occupied Room 12. The two agencies operated side by side for over half a century. Like Drake, Denny McCobb Humphreys enlisted his children in his office. Starting in the 1890s, he employed his daughter, Agnes (1865-1954), and son, Frederick W. (1880-1949), as clerks, and Frederick as a marine surveyor. Agnes and Frederick became equal partners in the business after their father's death in 1912. Agnes retired at age eighty-three, shortly after Frederick died in 1949, when she turned the agency over to James B. Drake & Sons.

Scope and Content Note

This collection contains business papers—ledgers, cash books, accounts, lumber contracts, shipbuilding contracts, and detailed vessel surveys—from James B. Drake & Sons and D. M. Humphreys & Company. It also holds account books from the Kennebec Steamboat Company and the Maine Navigation Company. Together, the collection contains detailed information on ship construction and repair, the operations of coastal schooners and steamboat lines, procuring ship timber for Bath shipyards, and a general view of Bath's insurance business.

Series I contains material related to James B. Drake's insurance agency and other business interests. The insurance business is primarily represented through ledgers and cash books. These outline payments received from customers and made to various insurance companies, but do not detail policies or claims. The accounts are not limited to insurance, however, and include entries related to the ship brokerage, the Kennebec Steamboat Company, office furniture and expenses, and personal items like groceries and clothing. There are also a few loose documents related to insurance, including a detailed set of plans and photographs of Bath Iron Works in 1944.

Drake's shipping interests are summarized by two volumes that, respectively, list every schooner's arrival and departure in port from the 1880s to the 1910s and the charters that Drake negotiated for them. There are also more detailed accounts for the Alice May Davenport (four-mast schooner), Ella L. Davenport (three-mast schooner), Henry Clausen Jr. (three-mast schooner), Isabel B. Wiley (three-mast schooner), and James B. Drake (four-mast schooner), as well as transcripts from a court case over the James B. Drake's charters. For a list of Drake's fleet of schooners, see Appendix A.

Documents related to James B. Drake & Sons' lumber business include detailed contracts for lumber orders from Bath shipyards and other buyers, correspondence about those orders, and an account book that tracked shipments by individual railroad cars. Earlier shipments arrived by schooner, and loading details are often included in correspondence or contracts.

A ledger and two account books contain a record of the Kennebec Steamboat Company from its first operations in 1869 to the first voyages of the Kennebec (steamer) in 1889. These include accounts for the Star of the East (sidewheel steamer), Eastern Queen (steamer), Clarion (steamer), Augusta (steamer), and Della Collins (sternwheel steamer). There are also printed pamphlets from the Eastern Steamboat Company and the Eastern Steamship Company.

Series I also contains a ledger and journal from the Maine Navigation Company. These list the earnings and sales of their vessels along with Drake's commissions for managing the business.

Series II has material from D. M. Humphreys & Co. The bulk of the series consists of Humphreys' vessel survey books, which contain detailed reports on the materials, construction details, dimensions, and condition of hundreds of Bath vessels between 1874 and 1911. For a complete list, see Appendix B. Most of these are surveys of new vessels taken during construction to assign an insurance classification. Others are half-time surveys, taken to reclassify a ship when it reached fifteen years old, or surveys of damaged vessels. There is also a notebook of longhand reports on maintenance and repairs, which were appended to the vessel's certificate of classification.

In addition to vessel surveys, the Humphreys insurance business is represented by summarized semi-annual reports sent to the Aetna Insurance Company.
